Hosted by Active Gamers LA at the Hanger Athletic Xchange, the same host and venue for the Tekken 6 Launch Party, Triple Threat will be the largest fighting game tournament we've had in a while. As the image says, each game will have prizes totaling $2200, bringing out some of the best pros the west coast has to offer and the US National Street Fighter IV champion Justin Wong.

Aside from the three headlining games, Triple Threat will feature side tournaments for Super Street Fighter II HD Remix, Super Smash Brothers Brawl singles, Street Fighter III: 3rd Strike, and a ladies-only Street Fighter IV tournament. Seeing a new tournament organizer show so much love towards neglected games like 3rd Strike and BlazBlue almost brings a tear to my eyes. As if all this wasn't enough, the newest iteration of BlazBlue, BlazBlue: Continuum Shift will make an appearance at Triple Threat for gamers to try and test out. If we show enough love towards this new game at Triple Threat, a potential launch party for it may be in the works as well...

To hype people up more for this tournament, Active Gamers LA will also host a gaming party on Friday the 13th.
